

Before the Court of the State of Emotion

In the Perimeter of Revive the Ambience, et al.
for Leave to Change His/Her Name to Islands of Ability

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF NAME AND TEMPORAL PLACEMENT

TO: All Symbol Children, Animals and Plants whose interests it intends to serve

- 1.) Revive the Ambience is no longer in the custody of its founder, Stefan Foster, absent from person.
- 2.) The aforementioned publication service, formerly known as Revive the Ambience, has succumbed to a phenomena known as friable affection.
- 3.) Unity by this process is remanded interminably through waves of sea-foam psilocin and smoke signals from sweet-dry taraxacum.
- 4.) Revive the Ambience does not exist.
- 5.) The legal name of Stefan Foster's intellectual property (for any and all works published or conceived as progeny in the future-now-before) shall be known as Islands of Ability.
- 6.) Purpose stems from gold-cap instruction, harridan auras and hyphae as fecundation we may become.
- 7.) Flowers enjoy the consumption of territory without loss.
- 8.) Earth is a fossil of animals in asbestos.

So ordered.

Islands of Ability, its above-entered name change, and our perception of life as recapitulation of activity within amygdala thread to moss, is informed by logical contributions to a shared perimeter:

Worsham, Lynn, and Gary A. Olson. "Temple Grandin, Translator: Sounding Autism, Seeing Animals, Making a Difference." JAC, vol. 32, no. 1/2, 2012, pp. 11–56.